Red Dress Day

On May 5, we recognize Red Dress Day, also known as the National Day of Awareness for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women, Girls, and Two-Spirit People (MMIWG2S+). This day is a powerful reminder of the thousands of Indigenous women, girls, and Two-Spirit people who have gone missing or been victims of violence in Canada and across North America.

Why the red dress?

Empty red dresses are used as a symbol to honor the lives lost and bring visibility to this ongoing national crisis. Red is said to be the only color spirits can see, and by wearing red, we help call them home.

Why should you care?

This is about justice, human rights, and standing up against the violence, racism, and systemic issues that continue to affect Indigenous communities. It's about showing empathy, taking action, and being part of a movement for change—even with a simple gesture like the clothes we wear. We will be engaging in various social justice and community awareness campaigns at school and we encourage you to show your empathy and compassion by taking part in Red dress day.
